Training and Education In The Healthcare Industry

With the ever-changing regulations and standards in the healthcare industry, staff training and education is critical for the overall success of the facility and to provide quality service. Employees should be properly trained so that they can successfully accomplish the job requirements and to communicate effectively the facility's standards and procedures. It begins with a strong Initial Orientation and should continue on throughout the career of every individual.

State and federal regulations require initial and on-going training for specific subjects, such as HIPAA, Residents' Rights, and Abuse/Neglect, just to name a few. OSHA has their requirements, as well as new requirements imposed by the Affordable Care Act.

DELIVERY OF TRAINING

- Lecture Methods Storytelling, Blackboard or whiteboard, PowerPoint Presentation, Overhead projector
- Interactive Methods Quizzes, break-out sessions, case studies, question cards, role playing, Q&A sessions
- CBT Computer Based Training Technological advancements is making computer-based training more prevalent and a viable option for organizations to train their staff.

COMPETENCY

Competency is an important tool to help assess and measure the ability of staff to apply knowledge and skills, reduce risk and ensure optimal patient outcomes. Competency can show limitations so that measures can be put in place to improve these limitations. This can be done through written modes and/or skills demonstration with return demonstration.

DOCUMENTING ATTENDANCE

The facility is required to maintain a written record of each formal in-service session which shall include:

- Date of training
- Description of the subject matter
- Identity of the individual or individuals providing the in-service education
- List of individuals attending the session that is signed by each attendee
- Duration of the session
